Nicholas A. DeConcilis focuses his practice on estate and tax planning. Having received a certificate in Tax Law while earning his JD, Nicholas is acutely aware of the complexities of tax planning. As such, Nicholas prioritizes listening to his clients to ensure their goals are met with precision.

While in law school, Nicholas worked for a variety of law firms, one of which was an AM 100 firm, and was exposed to a variety of problems which enhanced his ability to address problems in a multitude of areas of the law. Prior to working at Robbins DiMonte, Nicholas was a tax analyst for a tech startup researching taxability for businesses across the country.

As an advocate, Nicholas aims to be thorough with integrity to ensure that his clients, whether businesses or individuals, are protected.
